Old Music and New . . .

Our programming of contemporary music has attracted a good deal of attention. We acknowledge the distinction, and the fact that it is a controversial one; but we wonder how many listeners note the amount of unfamiliar music of earlier periods broadcast by the station. The extension of musical experience backward in time, as well as up into the present, is an essential part of the philosophy behind our programming. And furthermore, while we play the classics, Bach, Haydn, Schumann, and Brahms, we do not neglect their contemporaries.

In the present Folio, for instance, we have next to Bach his then more famous, now half-forgotten contemporary, Telemann. Next to Handel, his follower, Boyce. Along with Haydn, we are scheduling one Brunetti; with Beethoven, Pleyel, with Schumann, Spohr, with Brahms, Rubinstein, with Debussy, Dukas. When one thinks of the centuries before Bach, even the greatest composers seem unfamiliar—while painters like Rembrandt and Giotto, and poets like Shakespeare and Dante, are widely viewed and read. In the current Folio period, the curious listener can hear Purcell, Corelli, Couperin, and Monteverdi from the century before Bach; Palestrina, Gabrieli, and Morley from the century before that, and Dufay and Machaut from even earlier times.

For that matter, we are also presenting music that is presumably even stranger to present-day Western ears; Shibai, the theatre music of Japan (Thursday, August 18), the folk-music of Turkey (Sunday, August 14), and the classical music of India (Sunday, August 7). In principle our literary programs are marked by the same catholicity. Contemporary poets Robert Frost and Dylan Thomas read their own poetry (Saturday, August 13 and Monday, August 15); we examine the poetry of the West Indies (Sunday, August 14); our plays include Pushkin's Eugene Onegin (Wed., Aug. 17) and Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet (Fri. Aug. 12).

"Dead music is very beautiful sometimes, and always pretty noble, even when it has been painted up and preened by the undertakers who play or conduct it with such funeral solemnity at our concerts. Live music is never quite that beautiful. Neither that beautiful or that dumb. Because live music speaks to us all. We may not like what it says, but it does speak. Dead music, that whole Baroque, Rococo, and Romantic repertory we call 'classical', is as comfortable and as solacing to mental inactivity as a lullaby heard on a pillow made from the down of defunct swan." Thus Virgil Thomson, in the staid New York Tribune Herald. Now we at KPFA don't hold with such radical views. We stuff our goose with chestnuts as well as fancy spice. (Don Giovanni on Aug. 7, Beethoven's Sixth on Aug. 11, Beethoven's Fourth on Aug. 19, Mozart's D minor Piano Concerto on Aug. 14, Brahms' Fourth and Debussy's La Mer on Aug. 20.) Classical masterpieces, new music, and unfamiliar old music all figure on our programs. We try to play them in perspective. And we don't play the classics to death.

Here is a list of programs for the listener who is tired of contemporary music:

SPECIAL PROGRAM NOTES

STUDIO CONCERTS—The first of the concerts performed in our studio during this Folio period will be a piano recital by James Workman, who will perform the Berg Sonata, Op. 1, and Mozart's Sonata in Bb, K.333 (Aug. 8, at 8:10). On Aug. 17, at 7:55, Rolf Cahn will present a program of folk music. And on Aug. 18, at 8:40, Nancy Payette, cellist, and Norma Reddert, pianist, will play works by Martinu, Beethoven, Brahms, and Debussy.

TALKS FROM THE UN—KPFA'S rebroadcasts of the speeches made before the UN Commemorative Session continue in this Folio period. The addresses of Paul Henri-Spaak of Belgium and Harold Macmillan of Great Britain will be heard on Sunday, Aug. 14, beginning at 5:30.

KPFB—WHY IS IT?

When the KPFA transmitter failed recently in the middle of Macbeth, an irate Berkeley listener called in to complain. It was suggested to him that he tune to KPFB, to which he replied, "I'm only interested in the programs of KPFA." This incident and others like it got us to thinking: maybe people don't know what KPFB is—and why.

KPFB is an FM station broadcasting on 89.3 mc. It carries the same programs as KPFA, at the same time. Its power is much less than that of KPFA, only about 150 watts. Now, we come to the why. The KPFA transmitter, although powerful and well situated to cover the Northern California area up to 175 air miles distant, is received with objectionable distortion in a large residential section of the Berkeley hills where many of our original subscribers live. This is due to interference between the direct signal and its reflections, a phenomenon known as multi-path or ghost reception. The only solution we knew to this problem, short of changing the laws of nature, was to install another transmitter; this one, at our studios in downtown Berkeley and on a different frequency, 89.3 mc. The FCC allowed us to call it KPFB—and that's why.

KPFA LOBBY NOTE: During August we will display in our lobby a group of paintings by Robert Gilberg, a subscriber from Nevada City, California.
